

Human Rights and the International Court of Justice

For many years, the ICJ had very little to say about human rights. In recent years that has changed significantly, but the question remains how deeply the Court can and should engage with human rights issues in the future.

About the Speaker:

Bruno Simma has been a judge of the International Court of Justice since 2003. He was previously Professor at the Director of the Institute of International Law at the University of Munich (1973-2003) and a member of both the International Law Commission (1996-2003) and of the UN Committee on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights (1987-1996). He is an external Professor at the University of Michigan Law School and has written very extensively in the field of international law.

Vanderbilt Hall, 40 Washington Sq S, 210
March 10, 2009, 5-6.30 PM

Refreshments will follow. Please RSVP to Kelly Ryan at ryank@exchange.law.nyu.edu to be guaranteed entrance to the event.