

MICHAEL GOLDHABER

Michael D. Goldhaber serves as the Senior International Correspondent and "Global Lawyer" columnist for The American Lawyer magazine and the ALM media group. He writes widely on international law, with special interests in arbitration and human rights. Mr. Goldhaber is the author of A People's History of the European Court of Human Rights (2nd ed., 2009), and teaches a course on human rights litigation in U.S. courts at Fordham University School of Law. He conducts the biennial Arbitration Scorecard survey for ALM, and is currently researching the emergence of international business disputes that proceed in multiple forums. Mr. Goldhaber is a former law clerk to Judge Bruce Selya of the First Circuit Court of Appeals and Judge Patti Saris of the U.S. District Court in Boston. He graduated from Harvard College (summa cum laude), Columbia University Graduate School of Journalism, and Yale Law School, where he served as a book reviews editor for the Yale Law Journal. He lives in the Prospect Heights section of Brooklyn with his wife Shoshana, their young daughters Devra and Mira, and their cockapoo Nikki.
