I·I·l·J

INSTITUTE FOR INTERNATIONAL LAW AND JUSTICE
NEW YORK UNIVERSITY SCHOOL OF LAW

Indicators as a Technology of Global Governance

When:   Monday and Tuesday, September 13-14, 2010, starting at 9:00 A.M.
Where:  Lester Pollack Colloquium Room, Furman Hall 900, New York University
            School of Law, 245 Sullivan Street, New York

*       *       *

The Institute for International Law and Justice cordially invites you to its upcoming conference: Indicators as a Technology of Global Governance. The conference will examine (i) the genealogy of indicators and other quantitative techniques of governance, (ii) the relationships between the producers, users, subjects, and audiences of indicators, and (iii) creation, use and effects of indicators as forms of knowledge and as mechanisms of making and implementing decisions in global governance and connected local practices.  Although the conference will consider how (and by whom) indicators are produced, the focus will not be on improving the process of indicator construction.  Rather, using insights from case studies, empirical work and theoretical approaches from several disciplines the conference aims to identify legal, policy, and normative implications of the use of indicators as a technology of global governance.

The conference is organized by Kevin Davis, Angelina Fisher, Benedict Kingsbury, and Sally Merry.  Participants include Yamini Aiyar, Paul Benjamin, Nehal Bhuta, Juan Carlos Botero, Elizabeth Boyle, Tim Buthe, Bruce Carruthers, Sabino Cassese, Janie Chuang, Sarah Dadush, Anne T. Gallagher, Rene Gerrets, Matthias Goldmann, Ryan Goodman, John Hagan, Terrence Halliday, Andrew Lang, Emily Martin, Amanda Perry-Kessaris,  Katharina Pistor, Vikram Raghavan, Richard Rottenburg, Charles Sabel, Meg Satterthwaite, Michael Sauder, Gregory Shaffer, Ronen Shamir, Christopher Stone, Mark Taylor, Rene Urueña, Armin Von Bogdandy, and Kay Warren.

This event is open to the public but space is limited. If you would like to attend, we ask that you RSVP to: iilj@exchange.law.nyu.edu by Wednesday, September 8, 2010. For more information, go to: http://www.iilj.org.

*       *       *