

CALL FOR PAPERS
Imaginative Responses to the Globalization Backlash
Student Writing Competition

IMAGINATIVE RESPONSES TO THE GLOBALIZATION BACKLASH

STUDENT WRITING COMPETITION

.....

Can a different type of globalization be imagined?

We invite essay submissions that tackle one specific problem and propose a solution in any area of global law and policy

.....

LENGTH: 900 TO 1,200 WORDS

SUBMISSION DEADLINE: Extended to Nov. 30th!

MARCOS AND IDA KERSCHNER PRIZE:
$2,500 first place, $1,500 second place, $1,000 third place

Submission guidelines:
www.law.georgetown.edu/carola/writing-competition

Organized by:

 Center for the Advancement of the Rule of Law in the Americas
 Americas
QUARTERLY

Photo Credits: Maritime New Zealand

In much of the developed world, a backlash against globalization has gained momentum. With Brexit, the US pulling out of the TPP, and a renegotiation (or withdrawal?) of NAFTA brewing, the moment is ripe to rethink the course that globalization has taken. Currently, however, there are only two positions dominating the global economic debate. They consist largely of a wholesale rejection of globalization or, conversely, a defense of the existing liberal globalization as the enlightened economic path that needs to be softened and better explained. This binary choice is too narrow. Can a different type of globalization be imagined?

Submission Deadline (extended to): 5pm EST, November 30th, 2018

Length: 900 to 1,200 words

We invite submissions with ideas on how to respond to the current globalization backlash as well as those that offer alternatives to the current global architecture. Essays that address legal and/or policy questions concerning an area of international economic law and policy including, but not limited to, international trade, development, foreign investment, sovereign debt, tax, labor, immigration, and global rule of law are especially encouraged.

Winning essays will be awarded the Marcos and Ida Kerschner Prize: $2,500 for first place, $1,500 for second place, and $1,000 for third place. The top submission will also be eligible for publication in Americas Quarterly, the leading publication on politics, business, and culture in the Americas. Submissions will be evaluated by a committee set up by Georgetown Law's Center for the Advancement of the Rule of Law in the Americas \(CAROLA\). Winners will be announced by December 31st, 2018.

Submission guidelines: www.law.georgetown.edu/carola/writing-competition